CURRICULUM		YEAR 10
		SEMESTER 1		SEMESTER 2
		Term 1	Term 2	Term 3	Term 4
Unit name	The 'How to' of Hospitality		Stylish Services
Unit description	Students will develop an understanding of hygiene and safety processes for a commercial cookery situation. They will undertake a series of cookery tasks to demonstrate their hygiene and safety skills. Café managers are responsible for maintaining workplace health and safety in their venues. They must be fully aware of the workplace health and safety guidelines so that they can respond appropriately if a breach is detected. A breach of workplace health and safety can put employees and the public at risk.	The Hospitality industry is a major contributor to the Australian economy and employs hundreds of thousands of people. Hospitality employees come from diverse backgrounds and work in a wide variety of different roles. Students are required to understand a range of important principles, procedures and protocols that apply to the different sectors of the hospitality industry. Some of the most prominent areas of Hospitality are Cafés and Casual Dining restaurants. The ingredients, cookery techniques and food presentation styles used within these restaurants is very different to Fine Dining style restaurants. Understanding why there are the differences in the ingredients, cookery techniques and presentation and being able to adapt to these differences will make an employee valuable in the Hospitality arena.	Communities contain a variety of different food establishments to cater for the clientele of the area. Such establishments may include food trucks, cafes, restaurants, food boxes and market stalls. Each establishment produces a particular style of food designed to attract a specific clientele. As a newcomer to the hospitality scene you will investigate the current situation to identify a niche market in which you will work.	After students have investigated and identified various hospitality establishments and the types of service they offer, they identify a niche market. Students will use this information to design, prepare and present a range of dishes for their chosen type of hospitality establishment.
